If the principal amount requested exceeds the amount of the actual loan proceeds (before deduction of any administrative fees) due to market fluctuation or otherwise, the amount of the loan proceeds (including any administrative fees deducted therefrom) shall constitute the principal amount to be repaid under this note.
- 2. APPLICATION OF PAYMENTS. Each installment payment shall be applied to reduce the unpaid principal balance as well as the accrued interest of the loan.

Thereafter, until the loan is foreclosed upon in accordance with paragraph 7, the loan shall remain outstanding as a deemed distribution, and interest shall continue to accrue to the extent required under federal tax regulations.
- 5. LEAVE OF ABSENCE. If the Borrower is permitted by the Plan to suspend installment payments on the loan during a leave of absence, the loan shall not be considered to be in default on account of such missed payments; however, interest shall continue to accrue on the unpaid principal balance of the loan during the period of suspension. Missed payments and additional accrued interest shall be paid by the end of the loan term.
